

Through the Butcher's Window

Chloe Stricklin

What looked like a calf was really just a woman face down in the grass.

Chloe Stricklin is a Pennsylvanian poet living in Minneapolis. She holds an MFA in Creative Writing from the Bennington Writing Seminars, where she was the recipient of the Liam Rector Poetry Prize. Her work has appeared or will appear in Pittsburgh Poetry Review, Black Heart Magazine, The Tishman Review, and others.